

The Twist Jevnaker Bridge in Norway

The Twist Bridge is part of the Kistefos Museum which is a contemporary art museum and sculpture park located in Jevnaker, Norway

The shape of the bridge structure does not simply create a sculptural piece; it ingeniously connects the two embankments at differing levels. The generous double-height, column-free gallery space at the north end twists itself into a three-storey block at the south end.

This bridge reminds me of the story of Gideon who asked God to confirm his calling by signs and wonders: Gideon said to God, "If you will save Israel by my hand as you have promised - look, I will place a wool fleece on the threshing floor.

"If there is dew only on the fleece and all the ground is dry, then I will know that you will save Israel by my hand, as you said."

And that is what happened. Gideon rose early the next day; he squeezed the fleece and wrung out the dew—a bowlful of water. Judges 6 v36-38.

Sometimes I yearn for God to give me a miraculous sign to give me confidence in moving forward. I do so relate to Gideon.
